

Two Persons Killed, Six Others Hurt In Three-Car Collision

Child, Woman
From Scranton
Fatally Hurt

Matamoris—A child and an elderly woman met death in a sickening tangle of wreckage when three cars crashed near this Pike County borough at 4:50 p.m. yesterday.

Three more persons were injured gravely, and three hurt seriously.

The dead, both passengers in the same car:

Nora Lee Pehanick, 7, of 913 Snyder Ave., Scranton; fractured skull and brain concussion.

Mrs. Nora Williams, 70, same address; crushed chest and multiple bone fractures.

Three other people in the car were also injured: Mrs. Leo Kaplan, 41, Shenorock, N.Y., the driver, suffered a skull fracture, face cuts and crushed chest. She was pinned in the wreckage for a time.

John Moriarity, 9, Shenorock, fractured on each side of the jaw.

Linda Pehanick, 4, sister of the dead girl; cuts and bruises on the forehead, tongue and left hand.

Milford State police said the Kaplan car was going south on Route 6.

It apparently became involved when a north-bound car operated by either Ronald Hoatsen, 23, Port Jervis, or his companion, Justin Burdo, 24, Dingmans Ferry, pulled out to pass another north-bound car.

In the other car was a single occupant, Mrs. Catherine Powers, 70, Port Jervis.

The Kaplan and Hoatsen cars apparently collided head-on, and involved the Powers vehicle, police said.

Mrs. Powers suffered cuts and bruises on the face and a sprained left shoulder.

Hoatsen and Burdo both received skull fractures and other head injuries. Hoatsen also had a broken left hand.

The tangle of cars caught fire lit the initial impact, threatening the life of Mrs. Kaplan who was pinned.

Motorists worked quickly to get the other occupants out and into cars for the trip to St. Francis Hospital, Port Jervis.

An alarm was put in immediately for the Milford Fire Department. Volunteers shot out to the scene in record time but the flames were already quenched. They had been put down by Charles Werner, a resident at the site, who ran out with his hand fire extinguisher.

Firemen had other work to do. They assisted police and motorists in getting the injured loaded up for the trip to the hospital, helped direct traffic and freed Mrs. Kaplan.

It was one of the most severe automobile accidents to hit the area in years.

Policemen said their investigation still is continuing. They consulted last night with District Attorney Clifton Cloud and Coroner Walter Degan.

Cloud had no comment on the accident, police said, pending completion of the investigation.

The coroner did not indicate whether he would hold an inquest.

The spot where the accident occurred is a stretch of three-lane highway about two miles south of here.

60 MPH Speed Limit Enacted

Harrisburg, Pa. Gov. John S. Fine has signed into law a bill raising maximum speed limits in the state from 30 to 60 miles per hour on roads where the highway secretary decides such speeds are safe.

The measure is effective Sept. 1. "I have signed this measure solely for experimental purposes," the governor said.

There has been much controversy over speed as the greatest contributing factor to highway accidents and fatalities.

Fine said the highways secretary will limit the increased speed to one or two highways as an experimental project.

Limit Of 217,000 Special Quota Aliens Set By House As Measure Passes, 221-185

Washington, D.C.—The House last night approved a trimmed-down version of President Eisenhower's request for authority to admit 240,000 "special quota" refugees from Communism and other immigrants into the United States.

The House set the limit at 217,000, while the Senate worked into the night on its own version of the legislation.

Final Senate action on the bill of 187 Communists from Europe and bring them to this country.

Rep. Smith (D-Va.), attacking the measure as "swarmed-over hash of the Fair Deal administration," told the House:

"The people of America don't want their country turned over to European hordes."

The aliens would be admitted within the next three years and would be in addition to the regular quotas of newcomers from foreign lands.

As passed by the House, the special quota group would take in 4,000 orphans under 10 years of age, including 1,000 Korean War waifs to be raised at Boys Town in Nebraska.

The House vote was 221-185.

Voting for the bill were 132 Republicans, 88 Democrats and one Independent. Against it were 74 Republicans and 111 Democrats.

Leading the opposition, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.) said the bill would only serve to "siphon official beliefs.

During the past two-month period the demand for labor has exceeded the local supply.

Contributing to this increase have been major construction projects in the area. Building of the highway approaches and bridges across the Delaware will continue throughout this year, extending into 1954 in some phases.

Similarly construction at Tobby-hanna Signal Corps Depot is expected to extend for some months. Each of these are major projects, hiring hundreds of area workers in important labor positions.

Labor demand in the local construction field is at a high peak due to these bridges, approaches, highway work, community buildings and the Tobby-hanna depot. All this is construction work which will no doubt continue into the future," Denz pointed out.

"As it now stands it seems unlikely that the truce agreement will have any foreseeable effect on construction work being done in this area," Denz said.

One other anticipated effect of the truce on local employment was also minimized by Denz.

Returning veterans are authorized by law to receive "unemployment" compensation for a 26-week period following discharge. This plan—similar in operation to that of post-World War Two's "32-29"—calls for payment of $26 per week for the allotted period of veterans applying for it.

If the bulk of Korean veterans follow the trend already established by others who have come home from the war, however, only a few will apply, Denz said.

It was the first such defeat for the 72-year-old Premier, who has held the reins of Italy's governments continuously since Dec. 10, 1945. The new government, formed two weeks ago, was his eighth.

De Gasperi needed 273 votes, or half the total 545 votes cast, to stay in office.

The last agreement finally provided for 18 million dollars a year in highway grants to cities, boroughs and townships, an increase of three million dollars from previous payments.

At one time in the day, Rep. Anthony J. Petrosky (D-Westmoreland) threatened to have numerous lawmakers, who had gone home Monday night, brought back to settle the issue.

The objections of Petrosky and a number of other Republicans were overcome when a Joint House Select Conference Committee added another million dollars to its previous figure of 17 million dollars a year.

The communities now share 15 million annually.

The terms of the new bill provide for an annual allowance of about $171 per mile of local roads and 35 cents per capita to each municipality. Another 68 cents a mile would be on a matching basis.

Other compromises reached in the waning hours of the session included:

1. Ending the general appropriations bill total at $823,951,581—a $66,000 increase over the figure approved by the Senate and 21½ millions more than the House plan.

2. Placing a 425 million dollar ceiling on new state aided school construction financed by the sale of bonds.

3. Lowering the work week of policemen in Pennsylvania's 47 third class cities from 58 to 44 hours.

Wheat Farmers To Vote Next Month On Government Quota

August 14 has been set as the date when Monroe farmers help decide whether to accept or reject a government-fixed market quota for their next wheat crop.

The place for the referendum—which will be carried out all over the nation has not yet been announced.

If farmers reject government quota they must also relinquish a parity price of 90 per cent. If controls are re-elected, price support of wheat will be cut to 50 per cent.

The wheat quotas will operate through acreage allotments. They won't become effective unless at least two-thirds of the farmers who actually cast a vote are in favor.

Farmers with more than 15 acres of wheat will be eligible to vote.

A national wheat allotment of 62 million acres was proclaimed by the Agriculture Secretary July 15. Under present law, this is the minimum acreage which can be set

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your keynumber. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked numbers give you.

ICC May Order Installation Of Safety Devices

Washington, (AP)—President Eisenhower has signed into law a bill giving the Interstate Commerce Commission increased authority to require railroads to install safety devices. The bill was given impetus by January. The wreck was blamed on the failure of brakes. Under the new law, the commission could not regulate the operation of the devices but could order the installation of radio, telephone and electronic devices. The commission could not regulate the operation of the devices but could test their adequacy.

Hail And Farewell!

This final week of July was not proclaimed by the Governor as "Get Rid of the Legislature Week", and since no unexpected roadblocks were thrown in the path there was a general exodus of the dignified senators and representatives from the legislative halls.

Despite the yeoman efforts of many a stalwart leader last week, the effort to get the lawmakers out of Harrisburg by Saturday afternoon failed of accomplishment, and so we had the "final week" before adjournment during which not a few "must" measures were handled.

It was not done without a bit of struggle. The ante-rooms of the Senate had to be kept clear of those selfless souls, the lobbyists, by posting several State Police to enforce the laudable move.

From the beginning of legislative time, the unelected representative of many a cause has considered the senate a proper place in which to ply their trade. Hence, it was scarcely reasonable to expect them to accept ejection therefrom without a struggle.

However, with or without the presence of the men who are so intent on helping our lawmakers get on with their law-making, all hands in the Senate and House completed their tasks within the shortest possible time, and headed home to comparative bliss.

So we wish the General Assembly of 1953 a fond farewell, and recommend to its members that they try to forget the difficult days and nights during which they labored so indefatigably on behalf of their constituents.

We promise we shall try to forget the session, too.

Universal Training

Once again the government at Washington is going to take a good look at the question of universal military training, at the direction of President Eisenhower, and this highly controversial question will once more be examined from all angles.

Just what the President's manpower experts will discover that is not already well known is not clear at this point, but perhaps there are new elements unfamiliar to most of the public.

It has always seemed reasonable that every citizen of the United States should bear his share of the nation's preparedness program by devoting as many months as required by government to military training.

Even though we have never been, are not now, and doubtless never will be a military nation, this does not excuse the youngest generation from undergoing training for a brief period as part of the duties of citizenship.

The Once Over

THE REBEL

Meet Potiphar Potts, New York's newest rebel! Mr. Potts is conducting a one-man boycott of the New York subway system, a lone-ranger battle against the 15-cent fare and an all-out war on tokens.

"I'm withdrawing my patronage of the subway," Potiphar announced firmly. "I am giving it no more of my business."

This was pretty shocking. "Have you notified the subway people?" we asked.

"I sent a letter to Casey Stengel," said Potiphar.

"You have the wrong Casey," we explained. "Casey Stengel is the baseball man. New York subway matters come under the head of football. The subway Casey is Hugh Casey."

"Why wasn't I told?" said Mr. Potts.

Do you think your crusade will get anywhere?" we asked.

"Not by SUBWAY, of course," admitted Potts.

"But will it get anywhere by way of a protest?" we asked.

"I shall make a vigorous fight," he replied.

"But the subway won't miss one lone customer, will it?"

"It will miss me," said Potiphar. "I am the customer who always got on a train with a piece of lead pipe, a Samurai sword and a paving rock."

"Why such things in a subway?"

"It's the only sure way to get in or out," snapped Potts.

We pressed him as to how he intended to make his fight effective. "For one thing I shall picket kiosks," he said. "I have my banners ready. They read: 'Don't Take Token for a Token' . . . 'A Subway Trip Should be a Ride not an Economic Exploit' . . . 'Fifteen Cents Is Too Much to Pay for any Scrimage' and 'Don't Be a Token Slave'.

"Any others?"

"Yes. I shall use the obvious one: 'This Subway Unfair to Battered People,'" admitted Potiphar Potts. "And I have had suggestions such as 'Fifteen Cents Is Fifteen Cents to Me No Matter What It Is to Tom Dewey' and 'Bring Back the Fallen Arches at the Old Price'."

"Don't forget that the New York subway gives you the longest ride on earth for the money," we cautioned.

"Stop talking like a lobbyist for the token manufacturers," Potiphar snapped. "It ain't the length of the ride, it's the length of the subsequent medical treatment."

From the depths of the subways came the quaint cries of, "Letem-off! Letem-off! Move up forward!"

"Revolt!" cried Potiphar Potts, newest of the big city rebels.

"Revolt! To the barricades! Give me a ten-cent fare or give me death, but don't try to give me a hard, transparent covering for their eyes."

Cows have been associated with religious rites for thousands of years.

"This cocktail is too strong."

Canned water is being produced for the United States Army. The water is scientifically distilled and then sealed in cans that are unaffected by salt water or sun-zero temperatures and will not sink if dropped into the sea.

In place of eyelids, snakes have a hard, transparent covering for their eyes.

Reed-George Hassle Could Wreck Reciprocal Trade

Washington —

There is an unusual personal situation in the bitter backstage battle that is threatening the continuance of the Reciprocal Trade Act.

Each branch of Congress has passed its own bill to extend this law for another year, but they have been unable to get together on these slightly different measures because of the unyielding stand of two veteran legislators whose combined service totals 63 years.

They are Representative Daniel Reed (D., N.Y.), ramblous chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, who is the fourth senior member of the House with 31 consecutive years of service, and Senator Walter George (Ga.), ranking Democratic member of the Finance Committee, who has sat in the upper chamber since 1922, longer than any other living member by five years.

"That is a high-handed attitude," retorted George, "and I see no occasion for it, unless your purpose is to kill this legislation. That would be a sick way to do it, and I know certain interests who wouldn't be above such tactics."

But Reed was as good as his word. He wouldn't budge, and finally ended the meeting with an ultimatum.

"We will stand adjourned," the upstate New Yorker asserted, "until the Senate conferees notify me they are willing to accede to this provision in the House bill."

"Then you'll wait a long time," said George angrily.

There has been no meeting of the conferees since. What will happen is conjectural.

George's stand was heartily approved at a powwow of House leaders, who do that. Republican leaders contend this change was necessary to enable them to line up enough votes to approve President Eisenhower's request that the Trade Act be continued for another year. But the Senate refused to accept this concession to the high-tariff foes of the legislation.

Led by a bi-partisan spearhead, consisting of George and Senator Eugene Millikin (Colo.), Republican chairman of the Finance Committee, the upper chamber approved a bill that retains the Tariff Commission in its present form.

Locked horns — Representative Reed took the lead in forcing the showdown that precipitated the deadlock.

It happened at the very first meeting of the House-Senate conferees to iron out differences in the two bills. At the start, all was amity and harmony. The Senate and House groups quickly settled the bill to the satisfaction of the following:

Actually, the law expired June 30. But the system has been kept functioning because of the confident belief the Act would be renewed, as demanded by the President. But if Congress adjourns this weekend without doing that, because of the clash over the Tariff Commission, then reciprocal trade is a dead duck.

Blood Collection Falls 14 Pints Short Of Monthly Quota

Jail Inmates, Camps, Plants Among Donors

A total of 136 pints of blood were collected in yesterday's visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

The mobile unit was stationed at First Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

During those hours 154 persons registered to give blood. Walk-ins accounted for 45 of that total. Eighteen persons could not give blood, attendants decided after examinations.

Prisoners from Monroe County Jail volunteered as a group to give blood to the unit. Sheriff Jacob Altemose brought seven men to the church. Each man gave a pint of blood to the drive.

One other prisoner also volunteered but was unable to give blood.

Also on the contributing list were several Pocono Mountains resorts and summer camps.

Listed as sending donors to the church were the following: Pocono Highland Camp, six donors; Blue Mountain Camp, 11 donors; Shawnee Inn, five donors; Vacation Valley, four donors, and Pinebrook one donor.

Donors also came in from numerous Monroe County industries, including Art Metal, Worthington Mover, Hughes Printing and Patterson-Kelley.

According to Mrs. Martha Dreher, one of the attendants at the church, yesterday's Bloodmobile visit ran "very smoothly from start to finish."

There were "plenty of beds and none of the donors had to wait very long to give blood," Mrs. Dreher said.

A quota of 150 pints of blood had been set for the July visit of the Bloodmobile, according to Red Cross officials. This left the unit 14 pints shy of its monthly quota.

Yesterday's showing was considerably better than that for the June visit, however. June's quota was 150 pints, also. Only 108 pints were collected at that time.

Postal Rate Increase Is Pigeon-Holed

Washington (AP) — Congress yesterday pigeon-holed President Eisenhower's request for an increase in postal rates. Postmaster General Summerfield called the decision "regrettable."

Eisenhower had labelled the bill, which among other things would raise the price of a stamp on a first class letter from three to four cents, as "must" legislation. But the House Post Office Committee ditched it for the rest of the year at least.

There were two reasons: One, Congress is hurrying through its legislative calendar in an attempt to meet a target date for adjournment at the end of the week, and Two, chances are there aren't enough votes around now to pass the bill.

So the committee decided to put off any further consideration of the rate increase until next year.

Summerfield got out a statement saying he was confident that when Congress returns to work in January "we can then have quick action on postal rate increases so that the Post Office Department may contribute its share to balancing the federal budget."

The bill would give the department an additional 240 million dollars a year.

Summerfield said it had been estimated that the department would run about 746 millions in the red in the fiscal year which ends next July 1, but that he has been able to cut that deficit down to 315 millions.

John Crandall Relinquishes Two Motor Club Offices At Board Of Governors Meeting

LeRoy Dengler, president of the Pocono Mountain Motor Club, announced the resignation of John Crandall as a member of the Board of Governors and chairman of the Highway Committee at the board meeting this week.

Mr. Crandall, manager of Pocono Manor, took the step, it was stated, on the advice of his physician to relieve himself of many responsibilities he had carried on.

The board expressed regret in accepting the resignation, stating he having been a valued member of the group. His work at the head of the Highway Committee was pronounced as outstanding.

Complaint of what was claimed as the slippery condition of the highway on Route 390, one mile north of Canadensis, on the road to Skypoint when wet, was read at the meeting.

The communication was from the Philadelphia Automobile Club in behalf of John Gardner Jr., for 45 years a member of the unit who entered the complaint. The board referred the communication to the local branch of the State Highway Department.

George H. Costenbader announced he had been assured that the new bridge at Willow Dell would be completed by Aug. 1. There had been much complaint of delay in getting the project under way.

Costenbader had labelled the bill, which among other things would raise the price of a stamp on a first class letter from three to four cents, as "must" legislation. But the House Post Office Committee ditched it for the rest of the year at least.

Union Settles Dispute With Blouse Plants

The wage dispute which affected over 3,000 employees in 71 blouse manufacturing plants in this section ended yesterday.

Meeting at Ross Common Manor, near Saylorsburg, representatives of manufacturers, contractors and the International Ladies Garment Workers ratified an agreement they submitted Monday in New York City. The agreement provides for an eight percent wage hike and 35-hour work week.

In a joint statement by the State Belt Apparel Contractors Association and ILGWU, AF of L, it was disclosed the contractors received written notice that rates will be increased by manufacturers to meet the new wage demands.

Idle workers are expected to resume operations today. Work started last week in 13 of the 71 plants where negotiations had been completed earlier.

Efforts to organize three other blouse mills by calling strikes yesterday affected Yolanda Manufacturing Co. at Martins Creek, employing 26 workers; D and R Sportswear and L and M Sportswear, both of Roseto, which employ about 25 persons each.

Gas Prices Drop At Syracuse, N.Y.

Syracuse, N.Y. (AP) — Motorists yesterday began buying gasoline two cents a gallon cheaper from service stations handling the products of the Sun Oil Co. and Atlantic Refining Co. in the Syracuse area. A Sun spokesman said it was to help dealers meet competition.

At least two other major oil companies decided to cut their tankwagon prices to dealers by two cents effective today and being reflected at the retail level tomorrow. They were Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. and Shell Oil Co.

Driver of the car, police said, was Marvin Korn, 20, a New York City student.

Mr. Fix-It Frequently Breaks Laws

By David G. Bareuther
Associate Press Real Estate Editor

How to stay out of jail might be a good chapter heading in "Do-It-Yourself" books. We haven't heard of a home handyman actually landing in the hoosegow for his fix-it and build-it efforts, but apparently thousands of us are lawbreakers without knowing it.

There are building regulations, plumbing, heating and electrical codes, zoning restrictions and fire and health ordinances in every well-governed community. In some places there are so many things a man can't do on his own property that it is much easier to list the few regulations that are legal.

Charles Hostetter of the Toledo Blade found this out recently in making a survey of the laws people break with hammer or monkey wrench.

"Have you recently installed a washer, drier, hot water heater, garbage disposal unit, or dishwasher?" Mr. Hostetter asked his Toledo, Ohio, readers. "Did you have a permit? Technically you must have one and primarily for your own benefit, for city inspectors check to determine there are no hazards to your safety and health in operating those devices."

Don't think this applies only to Toledo and that you can do as you please. It happens that Toledo is more or less typical. It would be wise to check your own regulations.

Under almost any building code, permits are required for any structural work—building a dog house, tool shed, garage, porch, attic windows, dormers, and even work indoors, such as enlarging a doorway to an archway.

Mr. Hostetter found that about the only jobs not requiring permits were:

Construction Ordinary repairs, replacing anything worn out or deteriorated by the weather.

Plumbing Pouring grease solvent down the drain.

Heating Adjusting the thermostat.

Electrical Using an extension cord.

"Many heating, plumbing and electrical projects are done by homeowners without permits and in violation of the law," he observes. "Here the handyman defeats himself. The city not only will readily grant permits for this type of work if the householder chooses to do himself, but will provide on-the-job inspection to guide the handyman in turning out a first-class, hazard-free and acceptable job."

It should be easy for any homeowner to understand why there are such laws. If your neighbor built a porch or other structure too close to your line and interfered with your light and air, you'd object. If he made plumbing changes that contaminated your drinking water, or electrical changes that constituted fire hazards, you'd insist on protection.

Even an outdoor barbecue can be a neighborhood nuisance. Hostetter found that if an outdoor fireplace is a target of complaint, the Fire Prevention Bureau in Toledo has the power to order its removal.

"The bureau," he says, "recommends a minimum 10-foot clearance between an outdoor oven and any frame building."

"Except for burning charcoal in an outdoor oven any outdoor fire is illegal in the city."

On the other hand, some deliberate disregard for building permits, where they can be dodged, undoubtedly is prompted by fear of the tax assessor. The home owner building a back porch on his house soon learns that making the project a matter of public record means a jump in his taxes.

If he did all the work himself, but estimates that the full cost of his improvement might have amounted to $1,000 if he hired the porch built, he may be faced with paying $15 per year on a lenient 50 per cent assessment when the tax rate amounts to 3 per cent.

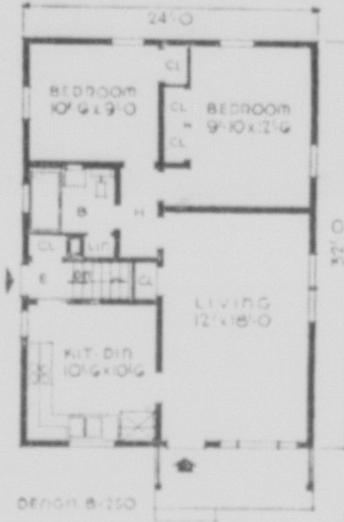

Nevertheless, a good Do-It-Yourself project is to get acquainted with your local laws and regulations.

Wedge May Cure Creaking Floor

When floors creak, it is usually because the subflooring has sprung loose from the joists to which it is nailed. If the underside of the floor is exposed, thin wedges driven between the joists and the subflooring probably will end the annoyance.

A SMALL HOUSE PLANNING BUREAU DESIGN NO. B-250

DESIGN B-250. Where a narrow lot limits the width of the house, this attractive 4-room plan will serve. Two bedrooms and bath in the rear; living room and kitchen-dine in front. A full basement is reached from the side entry.

Exterior finish is wide siding, asphalt shingles, covered front stoop, shutters and flower box and hood over side door.

Large dining space in the kitchen with cabinets on 2 walls, wardrobes in the bedrooms, linen closet in the bathroom and coat closet for each entrance. Floor area is 768 sq. ft. and including the basement, coverage is 14,592 cu. ft.

For further information about DESIGN B-250, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud Planning Bureau of Canada, St. Minn. In Canada, the Small House John, New Brunswick.

Rearranging Living Room Should Be Done With Care

If your living room needs some changing but you just can't decide what to do, look at it from several different angles. It should have an uncluttered, attractive look from any viewpoint if the furnishings and furniture have been chosen wisely.

All the pieces should be in scale with one another and with the room as a whole. If big chairs are combined with small ones, there is bound to be a feeling of imbalance. If you have decided on a modern decorative scheme, most of the pieces should be low and trim looking. This applies to tables, chairs and wall decorations, as well as such permanent fixtures as the heating units.

There should be an absence of "gingerbread" in such a room. Use solid but clean-lined furniture. Pictures frames should be simple, and you can dispense with filigree around the window or room entrances. Antique pieces shouldn't be used in the scheme, for the older styles of furniture definitely clash with a "modern" room like this one. Remember the effect you are trying to achieve when you pick out that television cabinet, too.

An attractive, tasteful room has unity above all. Whatever style you choose, make sure that every piece of furniture, every wall decoration or heating unit fits that style.

Refrigerator Door Swing Important

In planning new kitchens or the renovation of existing kitchens, care must be exercised in selecting a mechanical refrigerator to determine in advance in which direction the door should open.

Many useless steps can be avoided for the busy housewife if the refrigerator door opens in the right direction. Manufacturers turn out models with either left-hand or right-hand handles.

In measuring space available for a new refrigerator a buyer will do well to ascertain if there will be space to permit the opening of the refrigerator door without jamming it against other kitchen units.

Some opened-doors add about two inches to the space required for the refrigerator. Others open to 90 degrees without projection past the side of the refrigerator.

"The bureau," he says, "recommends a minimum 10-foot clearance between an outdoor oven and any frame building."

"Except for burning charcoal in an outdoor oven any outdoor fire is illegal in the city."

On the other hand, some deliberate disregard for building permits, where they can be dodged, undoubtedly is prompted by fear of the tax assessor. The home owner building a back porch on his house soon learns that making the project a matter of public record means a jump in his taxes.

If he did all the work himself, but estimates that the full cost of his improvement might have amounted to $1,000 if he hired the porch built, he may be faced with paying $15 per year on a lenient 50 per cent assessment when the tax rate amounts to 3 per cent.

Unity House Signs Greco And Spitalny

Forest Park—Alfred A. Taxin, managing director of Unity House in the Poconos has contracted for two of the largest organizations ever to play one-night stands at a summer resort.

Next Saturday, Aug. 1, Unity House will present Jose Greco and his troupe of Spanish dancers, and the following Saturday night, Aug. 8, Unity House will play host to Phil Spitalny's All Girl Orchestra, comprising 30 musicians.

Greco, who recently returned from Spain, has been seen at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, New York, for two engagements last season.

In addition he has appeared in many concert halls, legitimate theaters and is regarded as one of the foremost exponents of flamenco dancing. His company comprises a skilled troupe of dancers.

Phil Spitalny, whose "Hour of Charm" was a byword on the General Electric radio program for many years, will present a specially arranged concert at Unity House in the Poconos. Soloists include Evelyn and her Magic Violin and others.

Unity House in the Poconos is operated by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union on a non-profit basis.

Talented Acting Combined With Penetrating Story Of Alcoholic In 'Country Girl'

By Leonard Randolph

Mountainhome — From New York's depression-embattled theatrical front during the thirties one ambitious and idealistic organization emerged.

Known as "The Group Theater", this highly imaginative unit gave us some of our most outstanding actors, directors and playwrights. Among the actors and directors were Luther Adler, John Gules Garfield and Eli Kazan.

The writing backbone of "Group Theatre" was formed around a young man named Clifford Odets. Gifted with an amazing sense of dramatic values and an even more acute understanding of injustice and social irresponsibilities, Odets penned some of the most blistering indictments of society in our modern literature.

"Awake and Sing" and "Waiting for Lefty" were successful critically but less than smash at the boxoffice. Then came "Golden Boy" and Odets was in with audiences and critics alike.

Odets' latest play, "The Country Girl", one of the most penetrating studies of an alcoholic ever written, is being produced this week on the stage of Pocono Playhouse. Although it lacks much of the dramatic fervor of the author's earlier plays, it is his best play thus far from the standpoint of good theater, fine plotting and character study.

"The Country Girl" is the story of a broken, neurotic actor; his wife, whose position in the play is deliberately underwritten by the author, and the director of a new play who is determined that the has-been actor must play the lead in his production because he has seen him give sensational performances years ago.

When the play opens the director ("Bernie Dodd" (Leo Penn) gets permission from his producer and chief "angel" to read "Frank Elgin" (Joseph Anthony) in the part. Elgin reads, leaves the stage. Dodd persuades the other two men that the alcoholic should be hired.

When the director calls for Elgin, however, he finds he has left the theater. Dodd goes to the actor's home in search of him, meets Elgin's wife "Georgie" (Betty Furness) and the tug-of-war between the two for control of Frank's rum-soaked soul begins.

To give the complete outline of Set designer David Ballou has executed a series of wonderfully moody dressing-rooms, stages and run-down housekeeping rooms as a backdrop for the author's words and the acting.

George Maxfield's lighting provides precisely the right touch and emphasis in all the important places without becoming obtrusive. In the first scene of the second act there is one point where Maxfield's lighting and Ballou's set combine to give a concise, biting underline to words spoken by the director and Elgin's wife. This occurs when Dodd's shadow, falling on the dressing room mirror, obliterates the reflection of the woman.

These are the physical properties of a fine play, beautifully transferred from the printed page to the living dimensions of the theater. Director John O'Shaughnessy has guided his actors through intricate details of character development without a hitch to turn in a definitely superior production.

The part of "Georgie Elgin", in which Miss Furness appears, is not the play's star role. It is overshadowed to a large extent by both the director and the actor. Miss Furness gives it fire, resignation, determination and understanding in varying degrees throughout. In nearly all her scenes she is fine.

Leo Penn makes a good "director"; Tony Dowling is impressive as the producer; William Weaver, David Morrison and Jane Altizer are excellent in more minor roles.

To this reviewer, at least, "The Country Girl" is very nearly a one-man tour de force. In fairness to the rest of the cast it must be said here that no other part in the course of Odets' play quite measures up to the tormented, lying, apron-strung actor. But to meet this occasion an extraordinary actor of immense talent is needed.

"The Country Girl" is not a comedy. Neither is it a play which some persons, in their less fanciful moments, might consider "depressing."

It is a serious attempt on the part of one of America's most honest writers to portray the depravity of a man's mind.

If you love excellent theater you'll have to walk a good deal more than a country mile to beat "The Country Girl."

Pete and Mrs. Charles Clapper have returned to Big Spring, Texas, after spending three weeks here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Halterman and Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Clapper. They were accompanied on the trip home by Mrs. Clapper's brother, Johnny Halterman.

Hospital Aux. Confers On Antique Show

Plans for the annual Pocono Mountains Annual Antique Show for the benefit of the General Hospital are speeding up as the date for its opening, August 4, in the Armory in East Stroudsburg nears.

Sponsored by the General Hospital Auxiliary, the Antique Show will feature cafeteria lunches and light lunches each of the four days of the show prepared and served by members of the auxiliary.

The cafeteria committee met Monday at the home of Mrs. George Marsh, who with Mrs. George Hauser is co-chairman of the show. Menus and details of the cafeteria were discussed.

Those present were Mrs. Nancy Meyer, Mrs. Gladys Moore, Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. William Gorman, Mrs. F. L. Lantz, Miss Bass Gardner, and Mrs. Gilbert Barthold, director of the Antique Show.

Ordinarily during the vacation season, young men only come out from their summer jobs at night like the night-blooming cereus. But here they were in droves and hordes and all heading toward the church.

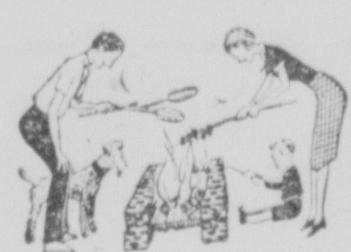

Of course when I say things are quiet, I mean in the social whirl. They're anything but quiet on the streets, where a summer vacationists put on quite a show.

In East Stroudsburg, there's one eating place has a sign on the door "No Shorts on Anyone Over Ten Years Old." That seems pretty drastic, but some of the shorts are pretty drastic, too, and I suppose you wouldn't want to go around with a tape measure.

And besides, it's the ratio of shorts to circumference that's the main difficulty.

Local Residents Reading More County Library Report Shows; New Hours Announced

The Monroe County Public Library has an increase of 4,000 more volumes loaned over 1951, despite predictions by book sellers and educators that television would hurt library book circulation.

The increase has been particularly noticeable in the circulation of non-fiction books, the annual report of the librarian, Mrs. Elizabeth Kane showed at the annual meeting of the board of trustees of the Monroe County Public Library.

The meeting was held Monday afternoon, July 27, in the Stroud Community House where the library is housed. Mrs. C. C. Scheila, chairman of the board, presided.

The annual treasurer's report was given by Miss Linda Stauffer, treasurer, who also presented the budget for the present year, which was adopted.

A change in library hours was also voted both for the main library and the junior section. The main library will be open Monday through Friday from 12 noon until 8 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. The Junior section will be open Monday through Friday from 2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Miss Ann Kane was appointed assistant librarian to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Evangeline Henry, former assistant.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kane, librarian and secretary of the board, reported a total circulation for the year 1952, of 101,924 books. Of this number 49,000 were circulated through the county by bookmobile service.

At the present time there are 1,310 borrowers registered in the Monroe County Library. The library itself now has 27,000 volumes and its service is free to all residents of the county.

Local Couples Attend Berkshire Music Festival

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Knob, of Pocono Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Koehl, of Lindbergh Ave., have just returned from a weekend spent at Lenox, Mass., where they attended the Berkshire Music Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

At the concert on Saturday night they heard the orchestra play an all-Haydn program which included the Theresa Mass in flat major. Sunday morning they attended a concert of chamber music.

At the afternoon concert, attended by some 10,000 people, the orchestra played Strauss, Ravel, Prokofieff and Milhaud. The feature of the afternoon was "A Parable of Death" with the famous Vera Zorina as narrator. Edward Knob sang with the Berkshire Festival Chorus during this number.

"Tanglewood on Parade" will be held on Thursday, August 13, when the Boston Symphony will be conducted by Charles Munch and Leonard Bernstein. Solos will include Isaac Stern in Beethoven's violin concerto, William Warfield and Leontyne Price will appear together in "Porgy and Bess." Act 2, Scenes 1 and 2, an opera will be heard in the formal gardens in the afternoon and waltzing on the lawn will be held after the evening's concert.

Those present were Mrs. Nancy Meyer, Mrs. Gladys Moore, Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. William Gorman, Mrs. F. L. Lantz, Miss Bass Gardner, and Mrs. Gilbert Barthold, director of the Antique Show.

The annual Correll Family Reunion will be held on Sunday, August 2, at the West End Fairgrounds on Route 309.

Rev. Herbert Correll of Pine Grove will be the guest speaker. Rev. Charles Correll of West Hazelton, who at 90 is one of the oldest members of the family, will also speak.

Games for adults and children have been planned and there will be a fish pond for the youngsters.

Everybody is asked to bring cakes for the casewalk. Music will be furnished by Doris and Jimmy Werkheiser of Nazareth Ed. 3.

The animal life of the Grand Canyon includes about 180 species of birds, 60 species of mammals and 25 reptiles.

Wedding At Glen Ridge Is Announced

Frank S. LaBar and Miss Hilda Passinger were married on Saturday afternoon, July 25, in the Glen Ridge Congregational Church, Glen Ridge, N. J., with Rev. Joseph H. Stein officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Gerald M. Passinger of Mount Pocono.

Miss Joyce Butt was the maid of honor, and Russell Harmon served as best man.

A reception was held at the Glen Ridge Country Club following the impressive ceremony. The church was banded with rhododendron in full bloom, although their blooming season was long past. Russell Harmon and the personnel of Latias Rhododendron Nursery had through ingenuity and perseverance delayed these particular blooms to be used for the wedding of their president.

Out of town guests at the wedding were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin M. Powell of Glen Ridge.

Local Delegates Fly To ALA Convention

Delegates to the American Legion Auxiliary convention in Pittsburgh from the local S. E. 40 Salons had double reason for excitement. They decided to go by plane, the first flight for both Chapeau Claire Coleman and Partner Bessie Marek.

They left from the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre Airport on Monday morning after quite a send-off by the members of the salon and are expected to give full reports of their flight as well as of the convention when they return.

Guests included Gretchen Knox, Susan Wingerter, Sandra Randolph, Stephanie Kanich, Barbara Blitz, Allen Bond, Brenda Taylor, Charles Buenzli, Donna Rose, Phyllis Weintraub, Charles Cahn, Barbara Rothstein, Marjorie Layton, Gail Josephson, Judith Nagler, Susan Muransky, Rochelle Ellswig, David Doll, Marianne Puzio, Gwen Epstein, Stewart Merkin and Elaine Bernbaum.

Elaine Bernbaum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bernbaum, celebrated her seventh birthday on Saturday with a party for many of her friends. Games with prizes for the winners and refreshments marked the party.

Miss Anna Kane was appointed assistant librarian to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mrs. Evangeline Henry, former assistant.

Among its 16 acts, it includes a magician, soloists, instrumentalists, dancers, baton twirlers, a trio and several humorous skits.

Mrs. Sheldon Shober is directing the performance. Mr. Shober is the champion ticket salesman to date, having sold more than 110 tickets for the show.

A dinner will be served at 6 in the same hall, and any local members of the fudge wishing to make reservations are asked to do so as soon as possible by calling Miss Kathryn Counterpart, a member of the Deputies' Association and a color bearer.

A meeting and entertainment will follow the supper, starting at 8 p.m.

Mexico's President Is Unique

by Alice Leone Moats

Finally, President of the Republic.

He is a man of culture—interested in the arts, a serious student of philology and history who has contributed many articles to the newspapers on philology and statistics. The respect he shows for the press is rare in a Mexican official and his courtesy is even rarer. He keeps appointments and not only answers letters but is prompt about it.

A family man with high standards of morality, his private life has never provided any fun for the gossip and his tastes are simple—the only recreations he enjoys are a game of dominoes, an occasional visit to the movies, long walks. These attributes make him unusual, to say the least; the additional one of scrupulous honesty sets him apart as an extraordinary figure in modern Mexican history.

The opening gun of his revolution was fired when, in his inaugural address last November, he served notice on old-fashioned politicians that the days of graft, corruption and government by crony were over.

His words caused no stir. They were accepted as high-flown oratory of the kind customary on such occasions. Then, a few days later officials and voters received a jolt that shook them out of their cynicism with the violence of an earthquake; the President submitted a law to Congress providing that all federal employees should file a statement of their personal finances with the Attorney General before April 4, and another on leaving office, with any discrepancies to be thoroughly investigated and punished. As soon as the law was passed, Ruiz Cortines himself filed one of the first returns, making it clear to anguished cabinet ministers, senators and deputies that henceforth they were to be regarded as federal employees, not privileged demigods.

The next law that went into effect caused almost as much consternation, for it meant the end of the one-party system in which the outgoing president decided on his successor and nobody bothered to count ballots. This one accorded suffrage to women, creatures notoriously insistent upon having their votes counted.

From one day to the next, the streets of the capital were cleared of beggars and itinerant peddlers, and work was begun on repairing the sidewalks, long neglected and in frightful condition because of heavy floods during many rainy seasons.

Within the first month hundreds of dishonest officials were dismissed and the purge of the police force proceeded so briskly that during several weeks photographs of policemen exchanging their uniforms for striped suits appeared daily in the newspapers.

Businessmen and politicians who grew fat by knowing the right people or paying the right amount of graft, have shown little enthusiasm for Ruiz Cortines and his reforms. Still, they aren't fighting back. Many suddenly discovered that the state of their health required a trip abroad; others quickly stepped out of the limelight. With them off the political scene, there is a completely fresh atmosphere in Mexico.

The most noticeable change is in the spirit of the Mexicans themselves. They are actually beginning to take an active interest in their government and indicating a willingness to learn what Ruiz Cortines is determined to teach them—the duties and responsibilities of citizenship.

These are developments that the American public should be following with close attention. They might contain a lesson for us and, in any event, they are significant because history shows that Mexico has always been the pace-setter for the rest of Latin America. What happens there today may well happen to other Latin American countries tomorrow.

His words caused no stir. They were accepted as high-flown oratory of the kind customary on such occasions. Then, a few days later officials and voters received a jolt that shook them out of their cynicism with the violence of an earthquake; the President submitted a law to Congress providing that all federal employees should file a statement of their personal finances with the Attorney General before April 4, and another on leaving office, with any discrepancies to be thoroughly investigated and punished. Contest Winners Find It's Tough Commanding Depot

What's it like, commanding the Tobyhanna Signal Depot? Rough—and tough!

That was the opinion yesterday of two depot employees—James D. Kilkner, Jessup, chief of the incoming property branch of the Stock Control Division, and James M. Caffey, Sugar Notch, a laborer in the service and supply section of the storage division.

The two, winners in a recent depot "commanding officer" contest, have completed a week's tour as "honorary commanding officer."

They accompanied Col. William M. Mack, commanding officer, on his regular schedule and were permitted to sit in on every conference or interview he held.

Their conclusions, reported to the depot's public relations officer, told that they "had their eyes opened to many things they never knew existed."

Kilkner said, "Anyone who figured that the depot commander at Tobyhanna Signal Depot is the legendary 'old Army man' is due for a gigantic surprise. I have found that the ultimate in executive decorum coupled with an informality that Stroudsburg Speedway will present the Singing Sergeant as an added feature on Saturday, it was announced yesterday by Tom Garbac, owner of the half-mile dirt oval located next to the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg Airport. The added feature will be something new for the local track this season. The Singing Sergeant is Leo McMahon, the likeable gentleman who lost his sight in World War One and since that time has been making a living by singing, mostly at sporting events throughout the United States. The presence of the Florida resident at the local track will bring home the horror of war to those attending the regular Saturday night show.

McMahon, who appeared at a doubleheader baseball game in Reading on Sunday and will be at Dorney Park tonight, lost his sight during World War One while fighting with the British Army. Mustard gas wiped away the precious possession of sight, McMahon was studying medicine at Western Reserve University when he joined a medical unit headed by his brother and went to England to help the British against the German army. McMahon was wounded in France and since that time has received only $25 a month pension from the British. War and suffering apparently have played a very important role for McMahon and his family.

The Singing Sergeant's oldest son is currently a patient in a Veterans Hospital in Chicago, after a tough time on the Korean front, McMahon's son was missing in action for several months and now is the victim of a serious nervous disorder. Young McMahon was one of nine Americans to escape from a Communist trap in North Korea. He was hidden by friendly North Koreans for several months, while Communists scouts visited the home of the natives almost daily to check on escaped prisoners.

Young McMahon finally found his way back to the American lines and was returned to the States for hospital care, after losing more than 50 pounds in weight during his flight from the enemy. Sergeant McMahon had two sons representing the family in the Korean struggle that was brought to a standstill by a truce this week. McMahon's feature number on Saturday reportedly will be "My Dream of the Big Parade," a number which he composed himself. McMahon will appear in full uniform while singing.

The Singing Sergeant formerly made all his appearances in minor league baseball parks, but since the virtual collapse of the minor leagues he has divided his appearances between the ball parks and the racing tracks. McMahon, although he realizes the government will provide for his son with a pension, wants to get all the bookings he can at the present to give his son the little extra that this same son once gave him. McMahon's appearance will be in addition to the regular five-event stock car racing program that the local track presents each Saturday.

The Joe Shea listed to report for induction into the Army today is the same youngster who played tackle for the East Stroudsburg High football team last year. Joe had planned to attend Blair Academy this fall, but the Army apparently had other plans. Although Joe is entering the Army as an enlisted man today, he still has hopes of someday attending West Point, a goal that he just missed recently. This scribe is only one of many who will be rooting for Joe to see his wish come true. Joe Battista, also reporting for induction today, formerly pitched for Stroudsburg High, in addition to teams in the Blue Mountain and Pocono Mountains Leagues and the Pocono Mountains Association.

Jack Cuttle, veteran golf pro at Pocono Manor, was shooting for eight straight holes in a recent golf exhibition match at Skipton. The eight straight holes reportedly included several eagles. Jack went two over par on the first and last holes, but wound up with a one under par 71. Cuttle and Tony Midiri, Glen Brook, were defeated by Ted Beadle, Buck Hill, and Harold Calloway, by a close one-up margin. Pete Brumley, left fielder for the Allentown Patriots in Sunday's softball game with the Eagles, played fullback in football and forward in basketball for Allentown High last year.

Stroudsburg Speedway will be the scene of a rodeo the last week of August. The rodeo will be sponsored by the Stroudsburg Lions club. Bill "Lefty" Greenamoyer, Portland pitcher, needed only three pitches to retire Pocono A. C. in the first inning of Sunday's Blue Mountain League baseball game at East Stroudsburg Playground. Hitting the first pitch, George Heide went out short to first; Harold Freeman grounded to first and Manager Bill Frear was retired third to first.

"Candy" Dailey, former manager of the Tobbyhamna entry in the Pocono Mountains Association, is playing with the Fort Smith Ark Army baseball team. The Fort Smith club is currently on a 12-state tour.

Russell Named Head Basketball Coach At Wilson High

Berger Shifts To Baseball At Lehigh-Northampton School

Samuel M. Russell and Carlton G. Berger, head and assistant basketball coach respectively at Stroudsburg High for the past two seasons, severed connections with the W. Main St. school yesterday and accepted similar positions at Wilson Borough High, one of the powers in the Lehigh-Northampton area.

Russell, who directed the Mountaineers for two seasons after graduating from Lafayette in 1951, will be head cage mentor at Wilson Borough succeeding Eddie Snyder, who recently resigned to accept a position on the Eastern High faculty.

The likeable Russell will teach history in addition to serving as head court mentor.

Berger, who will also teach history, will be the head baseball mentor at Wilson in addition to assistant coach in basketball. Berger, former Allentown High and Lafayette athlete, was also an assistant football coach at Stroudsburg High.

Russell is a graduate of Lower Merion High.

Change

Both coaches had planned to remain at Stroudsburg High next season, until both were offered the Wilson positions on Monday with sizeable increases in salary. The Wilson Board of Education met on Monday night and approved both Russell and Berger for the posts.

The former Stroudsburg coaches were notified of their official appointment at 9 a.m. yesterday, by William P. Tollinger, superintendent of Wilson Borough schools.

Russell announced yesterday that he probably would move to Wilson Borough around the first of September.

Berger replaces Clare "Bump" Johnson, a member of the Wilson Borough coaching staff since 1935. Johnson recently retired.

"Stroudsburg High regrets the loss of both men," Alfred W. Munson, school principal, announced last night. Munson added that both Russell and Berger for the posts.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Heller have back into the creek to be repaired the front porch removed from their white brick house. Their home is at the end of the curve in the Gap with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hauser.

Mrs. Judy Randt, of Bethlehem, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carlton.

Several years ago, Otto Gehm made a natural swimming pool on his farm. The new road construction destroyed this by their changes in the flow of Cherry Creek. This summer, Gehm has rebuilt and enlarged the swimming pool. A tree-shaded beach is at one end. The pool is long and approximately 100 feet across.

Miss Donna Francella, of Allentown, who was in the Gap last week to attend the Waring Choral Workshop, gave her services to the worship period at the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning. She sang Scott's "The Lord Is My Shepherd." The pastor, Rev. Luther Martin, announced that his sermon topic on next Sunday is "Road Under Construction." The following Sunday he will preach on "Rain On The Trouble."

Water Gap people have had to become accustomed to the steady hum of a water pump. The road workers have had one working at the Creek, near Mrs. H. W. Brodhead's garage, for several weeks. When the water is not being pumped into their mobile tanks, it flows
